The Policy Forum aims to contribute to the current policy conversations on Transforming Education and Training in Australia from the perspective of employment, education and skills development that ensures the principles of equity, gender, and sustainability. More specifically:

- To provide an opportunity to take stock of current global and national policy debates and initiatives, and to help raise awareness of the opportunities linked to transforming the education and training systems in Australia, to address the identified challenges.
- To engage with the inter-connected themes of lifelong learning, highlighting the often-missed sectors of adult learning, community education and vocational education and training, with a clear emphasis on equity as cross-cutting principle.
- To facilitate the opportunity for civil society networks to come together and become visible as activators in this policy space and release a collective statement on Transforming Education and Training in Australia.

Speakers include key policymakers at federal and state levels, international education experts, and experts on and advocates of adult learning, community education and vocational education and training to share their perspectives on co-creating more inclusive, equitable and sustainable LLL systems in Australia.
